Education

- MSLIS Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (2000). Academic Accomplishments: Phi Beta Mu (Library & Information Science national honor society).
- JD Cornell University (1991). Certified Concentration: Business Law and Regulation. Academic Accomplishments: Editor-in-Chief, Cornell International Law Journal.
- BA Brigham Young University (1988). Major: Philosophy.

Professional Experience

Position

Director of the Leon E. Bloch Law Library & Professor of Law, University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law (since July 2003). Tenure approved March 21, 2007 (effective September 1, 2007). Full professorship approved May 6, 2011 (effective Sept. 1, 2011).

Current Administrative Responsibilities

- Four FTE employees (excluding student employees). At one time, I oversaw 17 employees, including IT, but University initiatives to centralize IT and budget cuts have shrunk the library and eliminated my IT responsibilities. In addition, I have had to centralize my technical services department with the main library due to budget pressures and decrease in print materials.
- Budget of $1,305,215 (2024)
- About 400 JD students and 45 faculty and administrators

Previous Academic & Professional Employment

- Reference Law Librarian & Assistant Professor of Library Administration, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign College of Law (2000-2003). Tenure-track position through the university library faculty. Charged with reference and research, instruction and website design.
- Library Intern. University of Southern California School of Law (Spring 2000). Provided reference and instructional services as part of an internship program while still in library school.
- Shareholder, Callister & Callister, A Law Corporation, Glendale, California (1991-2000). Family firm established in 1928 in Los Angeles focusing on tax, estate planning, pension plans, transactional law, especially for medical and professional clients. Practiced areas included qualified retirement plans, estate planning, business and professional organizations, and transactional law. Oversaw the firm's computer network and authored document assembly tools for trusts and retirement plans.

- Advanced Legal Research & Writing: Scholarly Writing (co-taught, 1 credit hr)
- Introduction to the Law (fall 2003, 2004, research component to for the school's foreign LL.M. program, 1 credit hr)
- Independent writing and research papers for course credit

Scholarly & Professional Publications

Research and Publishing Interests

- The relationship of the information environment (and changes to it, such as the advent of generative artificial intelligence) to jurisprudence, the rule of law, and the evolution of government and legal institutions.
- The pedagogy of legal research instruction, including its history, appropriate responses to changes in the information environment, and the beneficial use of conceptual models.
- Copyright law pertaining to higher education and libraries.

Awards

- UMKC Law Marvin Lewis Rich Award (Spring 2021) for prior three years of scholarship and teaching (since 2018).
- Brenner Award for UMKC law faculty scholarship (2018).
- Brenner Award for UMKC law faculty scholarship (2006).

Bibliometrics (ORCID ID 0000-0002-9613-0138) Jan. 30, 2025

- Google Scholar – 369 citations to articles, 108 since 2020, h-index 7, i10-index 7.
- SSRN – 3,348 downloads (12 articles with 100 or more downloads each). Top paper is Generative AI and Finding the Law (2024) (1,016 downloads). I rank eighth for authors at UMKC Law School for downloads in the last 12 months, and fourth for UMKC authors still at the law school.
- BePress Selected Works, Digital Commons, & Institutional Repository – 11,657 downloads in 117 countries and 495 institutions (April 14, 2005—Jan. 30, 2025), (3 articles with over a 1,000 downloads, 11, with over 500 downloads, and 14 articles with more than 250 downloads). Top article is Time to Blossom: An Inquiry into Bloom's Taxonomy as a Means to Ordered Legal Research Skills (2010) (1499 downloads).

For the period of Jan. 1, 2020, to Dec. 31, 2024, I had 5,088 downloads in 107 countries, from 373 institutions that could be identified. Two hundred institutions were educational. Top schools with five or more downloads

(after UMKC) include U. of Minnesota (10), Yale U. (8), Indiana U. (7), Harvard U. (7), U. North Texas.(7), Georgia State U. (6), Ohio State U. (5), U. of Pennsylvania (5) and Arizona State U. (5). The most downloaded articles were Law, Artificial Intelligence, and Natural Language Processing: A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to My Search Results (817), The Persistent Treatise (682) (co-presented at a Yale Law Library Conference), Generative AI and Finding the Law (660) (presented at University of Pennsylvania law library “speakers series” for 50 minutes) . All three articles were published in the five-year window in Law Library Journal, except for Generative AI and Finding the Law, which will be published in Law Library Journal in February 2025.

- Research Gate – 19,147 reads (5,449 “full-text” reads), 122 citations., 14 recommendations.
- HeinOnline – 231 accessed online (past 12 months), cited by 151 articles, average citations per article 9., h-index 7.
- LawArXiv – 5,685 downloads (no longer accepting submissions). Top paper is Law and Heidegger's Question Concerning Technology: Prolegomenon to Future Law Librarianship (2006) with 1,706 downloads.

In Process

- Law and Its Discovery: The Roles of Law Librarianship and Legal Information Science in the Age of GenAI, DOI: 10.13140/RG.2.2.25994.58563, submitted to the AALL/LexisNexis paper call for 2025. This article explores the interplay between law librarianship and legal information science in the context of generative AI (GenAI), advocating for their reconciliation to address the rapidly evolving information landscape. The thesis argues that law librarianship, traditionally rooted in stable classification systems and cognitive authority, must embrace the methodologies of legal information science to remain relevant and effective in the digital age. Together, these fields can strengthen the rule of law by enhancing the organization, retrieval, and stability of legal information. Legal information science’s potential subfields are central to the discussion is to develop tools for the law librarianship to thrive in the age of GenAI. Many suggestions are made, but a few instruments are developed in detail: Rule of Law and Thin Theory, Ecologic Holistic Media Theory, heuristics for testing GenAI, the relationship of Rule of Recognition and Cognitive Authority, and the use of new GenAI taxonomies for classifying legal cases. By harmonizing the values of law librarianship—such as intellectual freedom, equitable access, and knowledge preservation—with the analytical tools of legal information science, this article presents a framework for law librarianship and law to flourish in the age of GenAI. The conclusion envisions a future where both law librarianship and legal information science collaboratively advance legal research, education, and access to justice, ensuring their continued relevance and impact in the digital era..
- With co-author Dana Neacsu, LAW FROM MEMORY TO GENERATIVE AI -- There are many publications that discuss how law affects its information environment – generative AI, the Internet, the press, and broadcasting. However, we wish to publish a work examining how the information environment affects law. This book will take advantage of several of my previous publications, including The Persistent Treatise. We are submitting to publishers for review.
- FIELD GUIDE TO LEGAL RESEARCH (2nd ed., with co-author Tove Klovning, publishing agreement with West Academic contract for the book to be submitted by July 2025). We hope to more fully implement Bloom’s Taxonomy, provide new, refresher chapters up front, and to add material on the future of natural language processing and searching. The text is marketed to advanced legal research courses.

Books

- FIELD GUIDE TO LEGAL RESEARCH. Book was published by West Academic Publishing in spring 2019. The book is not an exhaustive treatise about legal research; rather, it is designed to deliver a neat package of insights and exercises based on learning “constructs” that elevate skills in a short period. The book also includes a teachers’ manual for use with upper-level research courses and an electronic version. See <http://tinyurl.com/y56hbcuw>. The book was positively reviewed in LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL, see Field Guide to Legal Research, reviewed by Nathan A. Preuss, in Keeping Up with New Legal Titles (compiled by Susan Azyndar & Susan David deMaine), 111 LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL 591, 598-599. The book also received a “purchase” recommendation on Law Librarian Blog. See <https://llb2.com/2019/03/22/callisters-field-guide-to-legal-research/>.

Book Chapters

- Invited author for chapter, The Metacognitive Imperative, THE BOULDER STATEMENTS ON LEGAL RESEARCH EDUCATION: THE INTERSECTION OF INTELLECTUAL AND PRACTICAL SKILLS (Susan Nevelow Mart, Hein 2014). Members from the Boulder Conference have solicited the chapter for an AALL publication.
- Chapter, The Book as Authoritative Sign in Seventeenth-Century England: A Review through the Lens of Holistic Media Theory. In December, 2010, the chapter was accepted for publication for a treatise on legal visual semiotics, LAW, CULTURE & VISUAL STUDIES (Anne Wagner, & Richard Sherwin eds, Springer, ebook 2013, hardbound 2014). See <http://www.springer.com/law/book/978-90-481-9321-9>. As a proposal the chapter was selected from among 250 abstract submissions. The draft paper was accepted after submission to double-blind review.
- Invited author for chapter, Seeing the "Whole Elephant": A new model for Law School Libraries, INSIDE THE MINDS: THE CHANGING ROLE OF ACADEMIC LIBRARIANSHIP 7-34 (Aspatore Books, Thomson, 2008).
- CCH Editor/Author for rewrite of General Qualifications for All Plans, Chapter C:4, CCH Federal Tax Service (1999) (CCH Tax Research Network).

Peer-Reviewed Publications

- Generative AI and Finding the Law. DOI: 10.13140/RG.2.2.28311.14240. This paper is accepted for publication in 117 Law Library Journal 1 (2025). Legal information science requires, among other things, principles and theories. This article states six principles or considerations that any discussion of generative AI large language models and their role in finding the law must include. The article concludes that law librarianship will increasingly be drawn to legal information science and require new paradigms. In addition to the six principles, the article applies ecological holistic media theory to understand the relationship of the legal community's cognitive authority, institutions, techné (technology, medium and method), geopolitical factors, and the past and future to understand the changes in this information milieu. The article also explains generative AI, and finally, presents some examples of generative AI responses to various legal research problems and the issues that present themselves in such circumstances. Implications for practice are that while psychological factors and a changing information environment may push the legal profession to accept generative AI, the profession should not be hasty in doing so. There are several examples of when generative AI, despite its enormous power and facility, not only hallucinates, but simply gets the wrong answer for various reasons. Examples are given in the article of when the legal profession needs to be particularly careful.
- With co-author Dana Neacsu, The Persistent Treatise, proposal was one of 17 accepted (out of nearly 60 applications) for "The Legal Treatise: Past, Present, and Future," a symposium sponsored by the Lillian Goldman Law Library at Yale Law School in partnership with Law Library Journal (March 24, 2023). It was also "workshopped" at the Conference on Legal Information, Scholarship, and Teaching (July 13, 2023). The paper is published in 116 LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL 257-283 (2024). The article will be republished as a chapter in a book by William S. Hein & Co. publication, Perspectives on the Legal Treatise: Proceedings of the Second Yale Legal Information Symposium. The article was picked up by several blogs, mostly conservative, such as Steven Hayward, The Daily Chart: Common Law Making a Comeback?, Power Line, Jun. 10, 2024, <https://www.powerlineblog.com/archives/2024/06/the-daily-chart-common-law-making-a-comeback.php>. In the article, we challenge claims made in the 1970s that the treatise would disappear because of online case searching and jurisprudential theories that discounted that law had organizing principles. We use citation data in courts, briefs, and law reviews to make our case. We have also discovered that U.S. Supreme Court citation to "proto-treatises" and early American treatises while (not surprisingly) high in early decades of the court has also trended upward in recent years, suggesting that more originalist courts are returning to the sources available to the founders and early courts. Finally, we review the recent Dobbs decision and other important cases that have reversed precedent for the treatises they used. Generative AI Large Language Models and Researching the Law, THE BRIEF 18-25, (ABA, Spring 2024). This is shorter and more practice-focused article than the article with similar title, Generative AI and Finding The Law, coming out in Law Library Journal. Circulation is among tort and insurance lawyers (6,000 in print and 10,000 electronic).
- With coauthor Dana Neacsu, An Ecological and Holistic Analysis of the Epistemic Value of Law Libraries, 113 Law Library Journal 241-317 (2021, released 2022). The article was submitted response to call for papers for a symposium edition of Law Library Journal. It was selected as the lead article.
- Perma.cc and Web Archival Dissonance with Copyright Law, 49 Legal Reference Services Quarterly 1-57 (2021) (DOI:10.1080/0270319X.2021.1886785). Also published in The Role of Citation in the Law: A Yale Law School Symposium, AALL Publication Series No. 86, at 401-460 (Michael Chiorazzi ed., Hein, 2022). Responded to call for papers Yale Conference on Legal Citation Workshopped at The 2020 All Zoom Boulder

Selection committee for the Brenner Faculty Publishing Award unanimously designated the article from law faculty publications for 2005-2006 as the recipient of the award. In making the award, the committee remarked that the article "impressed the committee as a deftly written article that covers an expansive sweep of time, reaching back to the days of stone stellá, to show the interplay between the forms of legal communication and public acceptance of the rule of law. It demonstrates how the information ecosphere of any era—such as stone or papyrus—has a direct influence on the substantive content of law in that age."

Contributions to Digitization Projects

- UMKC School of Law Institutional Repository. See <https://irumkc.law.edu>. Reviewed platform, advocated for investment in it, dealt with copyright issues, and oversaw librarian/staff members working on project. The Sir Edward Coke Collection and law school "Pandex" have been moved to the collection. Many faculty papers are now uploaded to the site with many more records created for papers with links to other sites. UMKC Law Review has a single symposium issue, Multidistrict Litigation: Judicial and Practitioner Perspectives, on the site. I have just added “Pathfinders” by my students on various research subjects to the website.

- The Charles D. Gould, Jr. Digital Collection. See <http://dl.mospace.umsystem.edu/umkclaw/islandora/object/umkclaw:root> (collection is currently being moved to a new server). With Professor Doug Linder (author of the award-winning “Famous Trials” website), helped secure collection and arrange for digitization project involving University of Missouri Library Systems Digital Library and UMKC law librarians.
- Sir Edward Coke Collection. See <http://dl.mospace.umsystem.edu/umkclaw/islandora/object/umkclaw:root>. Acquired the third edition (the last edition published during Coke's life) of the First Part of the Institutes, first editions of the remaining three parts, and the thirteen parts of the first English edition of Coke's Reports. Made arrangements for digitization with the University of Missouri Library Systems Digital Library and authored the information pages.
- Debates of the 1943-1944 Constitutional Convention of Missouri. See <http://dl.mospace.umsystem.edu/umkclaw/islandora/object/umkclaw:root>. From an idea originating with Professor David Achtenberg, helped initiate and coordinated a project with the Missouri Supreme Court Library and University of Missouri Library Systems Digital Library, which when completed will provide searchable access on the Web to the 7,763 transcribed pages of the 1943-1944 Missouri Constitutional Convention Debates. As of 2017, working with Missouri State Archives to move collection to a new server.
- Carthage Conspiracy Trial. See <http://famous-trials.com/carthage>. Located the “Minutes of the Carthage Conspiracy Trial.” For the first time they have been transcribed and made available to the public at Doug Linder’s Famous Trials web site.

- Institute for Rule of Law, Identity, Stability & Culture (IRISC), a Kansas Not for Profit Corporation. Co-founder, fellow, and president (2007-2013). Although now defunct, formed non-profit corporation, prepared tax forms for 501(c)(3) filing, and designed website (www.irisc.org). While operational, IRISC promoted stability through the rule of law, culture, and civic identity. It was created to provide expertise, education, and research with respect to rule of law and stabilization for foreign states. IRISC develops interdisciplinary expertise to use law as a means to foster reconstruction and provide stability to foreign states and regions at risk of, besieged with, or emerging from conflict due to civil strife. IRISC partners or collaborates with governmental agencies, academic institutions, professional organizations, NGOs and others to advance its mission. In 2010-2011, IRISC received funding of over $600,000. IRISC's initial project in Afghanistan has produced 4,000 case files, surveying how Afghans solve problems without violence on a block-by-block basis in Kabul. This project is the only research project in Afghanistan to be certified by the Islamic Council of Kabul, the Afghanistan Ministry of the Interior, and the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan. During the 2010-2011, IRISC employees also provided three training courses on Social Information Collection and Evaluation and did some of the analysis of that information for the U.S. Army 10th Mountain Division.
